MEISER gratings made from stainless steel and aluminium

Place your trust in the highest quality standards.

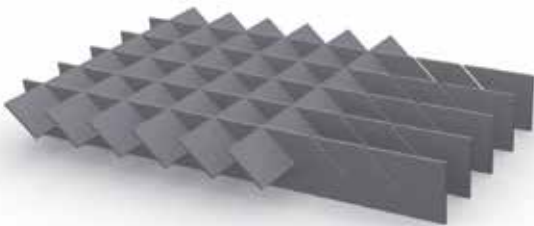

At our stainless steel competency centre, we manufacture high-quality gratings made of stainless steel and aluminium. The production process demands not only technical skill and the appropriate industrial machinery, but also corresponding production lines that ideally do not process normal black steel, as this inevitably results in sacrifices in surface quality.

Our competence team introduce themselves:

Put your faith in short communication channels and reliable contact persons

The prerequisite for long-lasting satisfaction amongst our clients is good customer support. Put your faith in short communication channels and reliable contact persons who advise you on the basis of their experience and expertise, highlight possible solutions and will immediately provide you with assistance in the event that not everything is running smoothly. In our opinion this is the only correct way to ensure that your requirements are met.

We are happy to be there for you!
